INTRODUCTION - This analysis explores the Ames, Iowa housing data using R's tidyverse package to understand the relationships between various features and the sale price of residential homes. It includes performing cleaning and transformations, generate summary statistics, create visualizations, and fit a linear regression model for prediction.

Part 2

For this section, I will explore and analyze an e-commerce dataset sourced from Kaggle. The dataset contains transaction details, including information about individual sales, products, and customer demographics. My goal is to use this data to answer two specific questions by performing both numerical and graphical analyses:

What is the average quantity of items sold per invoice for each country?

How does the total sales amount (calculated as Quantity * UnitPrice) vary across different countries?

```
